"On average, about 170 people in the United States die every year from CO produced by non-automotive consumer products."

Carbon monoxide (CO) is an odorless, colorless gas, which can cause illness and death. It is produced any time fossil fuel is burned such as in a car, generator or furnace. Symptoms of CO poisoning incl. headache, fatigue, shortness of breath, & can lead to mental confusion, loss of consciousness & death. It is especially important to be aware of CO during the winter months due to many deaths resulting from poorly operated home heating devices.

How can you prevent CO poisoning?

- Install a CO alarm in the hallway near every separate sleeping area of the home
- Never leave a car running in an attached garage, even with the garage door open.
- Never operate unvented fuel-burning appliances in any room where people are sleeping.
- Never service fuel-burning appliances without proper knowledge, skill and tools

Quality Improvement

The NDHD is continuously looking for ways to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of our services. One way we plan on accomplishing this is by engaging in Quality Improvement and initiating an immunization quality improvement project. By taking part in this project we are building a bridge towards better performance and future quality improvement initiatives.
